Our cutting edge sound design and sonic mutations have shaped ads and promotions for many brands, including Red Bull, Levis, Volkswagen and the award winning Blackcurrant Tango ad, and have been featured on TV & Film from all over the world on programmes as diverse as scandi-noir series The Bridge, NBC's Girlfriend's Guide to Divorce, Vice on HBO, and the BBC's explosive thriller, The Night Manager.

A little background.

Ultraphonic Music is a totally unique production music label unlike any other. A bold claim, you might think, but here's the thing. We set the label up (back in 2012) to make music we love, not music to fit a brief or fill a gap or indeed to imitate or mimic existing commercial music. Ultraphonic is not music by numbers.

We started the label with just one composer, Tom McCarthy (pka - alternately - Present Haze and Mercuryhead), a seasoned production music composer and massive Warp Records and (early) Ninja Tune fan. Think of those two labels and you have the original sonic DNA of the label and the basis of our aesthetic.

You will not find soundalike music on Ultraphonic. No Taylor Swift because the world is obsessed and editors lack imagination or Charli XCX because she is so fucking cool right now. Nor for that matter will you find a Buena Vista Social Club parody or some formulaic Peruvian pan pipe music.

What you will find is music that is almost entirely electronic and totally original. We now have a stable of 20 - 25 regular composers, many of whom are commercial artists from the roster of D6 Music, our commercial music publishing company. These include Gazelle Twin, Delia Gonzalez, Kid Loco, Stray Ghost, Forma, Prana Crafter, Zamilska & NYX to name-drop a few.

Ultraphonic is unique, fresh, distinctive, pretty niche, high quality and very cool. There, we've said it now. Enjoy
